48. Directory
Greater Southwest Development Corporation (GSDC) is a community development agency based in the City of Chicago whose primary goal is to improve the quality of life in southwest Chicago through entrepreneurial, commercial and residential development, as well as a variety of business and residential resources.

GSDC was formed in 1974 as a result of organizing efforts to hold banks accountable for the growing disinvestment in the Chicago Lawn neighborhood. At the time, the area was experiencing violent racial conflicts and GSDC’s early efforts were largely focused on easing racial tensions and stimulating economic investment.
Businesses interested in moving to or already located within Southwest Side Industrial Corridors can benefit from:

- Affordable real estate to purchase or lease.
- Adequate space in existing facilities for comfortable growth and expansion.
- Convenient location with access to rail, interstate roads, and the rapidly expanding Midway Airport.
- A competitive workforce and strong resources for job training and placement.
- Financial incentives offered in strategic sites throughout corridors through TIF and Enterprise Zones.
- Connection to City Government through GSDC.
- Active and supportive community groups.

Recognizing that strengthening industry creates a vital community, GSDC launched its industrial division in 1985. Designated as a Local Industrial Retention Initiative (LIRI) agency by the City of Chicago, the industrial division responds to industrial business needs and area wide concerns. As a LIRI agency, this gives the ability to provide high quality services at no cost to industrial business owners, including: one-on-one consulting for strategic business planning that takes advantage of growth opportunities. Technical assistance that assess business needs and provides the right tools for succeeding in a dynamic environment.

Business workshops that focus on industry regulations and other relevant topics.

Streamline access to low cost industrial financing, bond programs and grants.

Located on the far southwest side of the City, generally bounded by Marquette Ave., 73rd and 74th Streets on the north, Cicero Ave on the west, 74th, 76th and 79th Streets on the south, and Leavitt on the east.

The Greater Southwest Industrial Corridor is one of the major employment centers in Chicago’s southwest side. Home to more than 60 companies employing over 8,500 people, the corridor boasts many well-known businesses, including Dart Company, Mondelez International, Tootsie Roll Industries and many others. In addition to its long history as one of Chicago’s manufacturing hubs, the area also benefits from its designation as a Planned Manufacturing District and Tax Increment Financing District. These factors combine to provide a strategic advantage for manufacturing, warehousing, and distribution firms.

GREATER SOUTHWEST INDUSTRIAL CORRIDOR
www.greatorsouthwest.org
Located on the southwest side of the City, generally bounded by Indiana Harbor Belt Railway on the north, Harlem Ave on the west, 63rd St on the south, and Oak Park Ave on the east.

The Harlem Industrial Corridor received designation as a Planned Manufacturing District in 2005. But the area also boasts another distinction. In 2007, it was the first southwest side corridor awarded status as an Industrial Park Conservation Area Tax Increment Financing District. These designations, reinforced by the area’s demographic and geographic features, are attracting considerable interest from industrial users. The corridor’s well-known businesses, include Hinkley Springs, Meade Electric, Roy Houff, and many others.
